PREPLANNING (TEACHER ACTIONS)
Create Text-Focused Questions <input type="checkbox"/> Develop a series of questions to support deepening understanding of text: general understanding; important details; vocabulary and structure of the text; author's purpose questions; inferential questions; and opinions, comments, connections, and conclusions (always based on textual evidence).
Determine the Close Reading Strategies to Teach and Include (if appropriate) <input type="checkbox"/> 1: Annotation <input type="checkbox"/> 3: QAR <input type="checkbox"/> 2: Text-dependent/focused questions <input type="checkbox"/> 4: Deconstructing words, phrases, and text
Plan Opportunities and Structures for Discussion (Organize the space, structure, and "ground rules." Determine the strategy: pair-share, Discussion Web, Save the Last Word, pairs, informal small/whole group, etc.) <input type="checkbox"/> Initial impression discussion <input type="checkbox"/> Deeper, focused discussions
Plan Opportunities and Structures for Writing Application/Extension <input type="checkbox"/> Determine the place or places in the lesson where you will assign writing and the kind of writing: quick writes, lists, essays, etc. <input type="checkbox"/> Require evidence from the text. <input type="checkbox"/> Make connections to other concepts or texts.
Plan Opportunities for Assessment Formative and/or student product/performance

LESSON NOTES (lesson may be over multiple sessions)
Teacher Actions	Student Actions
Intro (___ minutes) Brief preview/explanation of objective and expectations
Initial Read (___ minutes) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Scaffold, if needed, for concepts, vocabulary, or insufficient background knowledge. <input type="checkbox"/> Determine if it will be a teacher read (read-aloud, especially K–1) or a student read. <input type="checkbox"/> The read-aloud is two years above the students' reading level (complex text). 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Students read and annotate text independently. <input type="checkbox"/> Students listen as the teacher reads the read-aloud.
Second Read <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Model reading the text aloud with prosody. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Students discuss (in pairs or small groups) initial impressions.
Model Reading <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Model reading and annotating the text while thinking aloud. <input type="checkbox"/> Read-aloud: Model reading an excerpt (chart, document camera) and annotating the text while thinking aloud.
Text-Dependent/Focused Questions <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Pose text-focused questions to support rereading of text, supporting understanding of important details, vocabulary, structure, author's purpose, and opinions, comments, connections, and conclusions (based on textual evidence). <input type="checkbox"/> Observe students as they reread and annotate again for questions. <input type="checkbox"/> Provide models and scaffolds as needed. <input type="checkbox"/> Read-aloud: Reread excerpt(s) appropriate for each question. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Students reread text for evidence supporting answers to questions. <input type="checkbox"/> Students annotate as appropriate (questions, rereading, and annotation are a recursive process). <input type="checkbox"/> Read-aloud: Students discuss and identify evidence for each question.

Universal Lesson Design Features

Overarching Principles

1. Multiple means of presentation of information to students (e.g., audio, video, text, speech, Braille, still photos, or images).
2. Multiple means of expression by students (e.g., writing, speaking, drawing, video recording).
3. Multiple means of engagement for students (e.g., to meet differing needs for predictability, novelty, or group interaction).

Rose & Meyer (2002)

Applying Universal Design to Curricula

1. Big ideas. Curricula emphasize major concepts, principles, categories, rules, techniques, and hierarchical structures related to critical ideas and themes.
2. Conspicuous strategies. Curricula include explicit instruction on steps to complete required tasks.
3. Mediated scaffolding. Curricula include questioning, feedback, and prompts.
4. Strategic integration. Big ideas are explicitly linked within and across curricula.
5. Judicious review. Previously taught content is reviewed and linked to applications.
6. Primed background knowledge. New content is linked to and builds on students' background knowledge.

Simmons & Kame'enui (1996)

Text-Focused Questions

1 General understanding and impressions: the “gist” of the text

General understanding questions enable students to grasp the “gist” or overall ideas and impressions expressed in the text. They are often global questions that ask for the sequence of events, main claim and evidence, or main hypothesis in a science text, for example.

2 Important detail questions that ask who, what, when, where, why, how much, or how

Detail questions focus students on the details of the text and are answered initially by “right there” or literal information, but such questions should be followed by probing that requires students to get at nuances and expound on the reasons for the details. For example, a detail question from Jack and the Beanstalk might be “What did Jack exchange the cow for?”

3 Vocabulary and structure of the text

The vocabulary and structure of the text questions cause the students to pay careful attention to the specific word choices made by the author, their denotative and connotative meanings, the use of figurative and other sensory language, the structures of the sentences, and the structure of the text as a whole.

4 Author’s purpose questions

Questions about the author’s purpose probe whether students can determine if a text is written to entertain, to persuade, to explain, or to inform. For example, most fables and fairy tales, such as Jack and the Beanstalk, have a moral message and are designed to be instructive.

5 Inferential questions

Inferential questions (Think and Search, Author and Me) enable students to learn to dig deeply into the text to uncover the logic or illogic of an argument, critical details in a literary work.

6 Opinions, comments, connections, and conclusions (always based on textual evidence)

Questions that require opinions, comments, connections, and conclusions based on evidence generate not only discussion, but also personal reactions (On my Own). However, we don’t want the personal responses to stray from the text; rather, we want the personal conclusions to rely on textual evidence. This is often the type of question presented on AP history or AP English exams that requires support for the conclusion using the text provided.
