

SANTEE SCHOOL DISTRICT STRATEGIC PLANNING

February 2, 3, 4, 2012

Potential Core Strategies - Student Well Being

Community Connections	Student Well Being
Student Well-Being
Track military families as they transition in and out of District (impact aid)	Increase counseling support to focus on mental health and soft skills, career exploration, high school and higher education preparedness
Expand preschool/pre K opportunities	Hire more counselors and write more grants
Provide family health centers for medical and mental health needs	Offer easier pathways for special education students to be identified/receive service/work with general education
Tap into parent community talent for skills and resources	Continued education and counseling in drug/substance abuse.
Develop a center for family resources	Coordination between schools and nontraditional families
Assist military families for transition from active duty to civilian (one-stop-shop)
Collaborate with military installations (technology support, guest speakers: resources are similar to civilian)
Build on existing collaborations with clear outcomes in minds
Increase community involvement (businesses, churches, etc)
Tap into older generations for personalization
Allow more volunteering to meet basic needs (grounds, repairs, paint, tutoring)
Enlist retiring teachers into classroom volunteer program
Build relationships with regional industry
Sponsorships: Needs of business and motivate learning
Hire a "Meredith" to find more business resources
Fundraise based on core concerns for the community
Repurpose what we have to save dollars
Create a partnership with a local technology company
Seek funds through bond and/or grants
Publicize Santee School District's strengths
Hire a PR firm to help get the word out about Santee School District
Incorporate the "rally cry" in every dialog.
Develop a marketing program to entice students
Recapture Santee's own kids from other districts
Inform the public about the monetary significance of solar and water renewable resources
Market our success to a broader community
